Ragley Hall, ancestral seat of the Hertford family for over 300 years and set in thousands of acres of its own estate overlooking unspoilt Warwickshire countryside. Started way back in AD711 when Ragley was given to Evesham Abbey by the King of Mercia. By 1912 the house was not in full occupation, and was used as a hospital during WWII. The magnificent Palladian mansion you see today was started in 1680 but took another 100 years to come to fruition. In 1956 restoration of the building, gardens and estate started to what you will see today.
